Resumen de la primavera 2024

La historia y la literatura cobraron vida as the spring included an excursion to Toledo, located in the central region of Spain. Toledo was designated a World Heritage site in 1986 and is known as a city of three cultures (Christian, Muslim and Jewish). Our students also had the opportunity to visit the iconic windmills that Miguel de Cervantes features in his famous work Don Quixote.

La feria de abril y la Semana Santa are two annual Spanish traditions that our students get to observe and participate in this Spring. The feria is a great time to showcase sevillanas skills learned in our class taught by Sylvia and la Semana Santa is an opportunity to witness how Holy Week is celebrated in Spain.

Escuche cómo el español ha ayudado Anna Mares (Wheaton College) serve her community in a unique way.

"I am interning at a newspaper in Pittsburgh, the Pittsburgh Tribune-Review, and wrote two articles about the Latino population in Pittsburgh bringing economic development and vibrance. I was asked to talk more about my experience on Las Palmas Radio station, the first Spanish-speaking radio station in my city! It's been amazing to use the Spanish I learned in Sevilla to conduct interviews in Spanish for my town's newspaper.

Interviewing people in their heart language adds a layer of trust and familiarity. Being interviewed can be stressful on its own, but answering questions in a second or third language can make things even more uncomfortable. I was able to have conversations with people I otherwise would not have been able to, whether because of an English language level, or simply because they felt more comfortable sharing vulnerable parts of their story in Spanish. As a reporter, my goal is to make people feel as welcome as possible during their interview, and being able to offer an interview in Spanish is one more way to do that."
